

Pappas Telecasting Companies' 'donation' of $325,000 in airtime to Republican candidates in certain areas is yet another example of a powerful media group abusing its privileged access to the public airwaves. If a media group had decided to do the same for the Democratic candidates, I can only image the lawsuits and governmental interference that would ensue.

Pappas uses the public airwaves free of charge and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. As a member of an american public who believes that both sides should be presented when covering political and ideological issues, I am offended by the use of corporations and our airwaves as a way to push their political views. The public has the right to have their airways used in an ethical and nonpartisan way.
Thank you.
